Dardanelle Wants That London Bridge

DARDANELLE, Ark. (AP) — Dardanelle Mayor Omer E. Stanfield was waiting today to hear from the city's offer to acquire the London Bridge.

Stanfield sent a telegram Saturday to C. V. Wood, president of McCullough Oil Corp., of California saying that the city through its Industries Board "stands ready to solve your problem by offering to underwrite the movement of the famous London Bridge to any one of several sites" on new Lake Dardanelle.

Stanfield said McCullough bought the bridge for $2.4 million, but was having difficulty locating it at Havasue City, Ariz., because of a dispute with authorities of having to draw water out of a lake to make a stream for the bridge.

"We have plenty of water and thousands of acres of adjacent land available to establish the kind of recreational facilities necessary to complete such a project as you envision," Stanfield said. "Our area is already regarded as a tourist paradise and a mammoth recreational development is now in the planning stage."

Stanfield said this included a 24,000-foot sky ride from the Arkansas River bank to the crest of Mt. Nebo. Stanfield said the bridge "would be the crowning touch, the greatest drawing card of all."

discrimination, party loyalty and the way in which delegates were picked. Nearly one-fifth of the convention's delegates and alternates could be affected.

The hearings by the two committees provide the setting for the convention's main event, the battle for the party's presidential nomination scheduled to be decided a week from Wednesday.

With the two leading Democratic presidential contenders sharply at odds over the Vietnam plank, the party's convention Platform Committee hearings began in Washington. And hearings on delegate seating challenges began in Chicago.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Sunday presidential rival Sen. Eugene McCarthy's proposed Vietnam plank would favor imposing a coalition government, including Viet Cong participation, on South Vietnam.

"I cannot agree with that," Humphrey said.

McCarthy answered that he would not impose a coalition government. But he said if the United States recommended one and South Vietnamese leaders rejected it, the United States should withdraw its support.

Humphrey had indicated he could accept a qualified call in the platform for a U.S. bombing halt in North Vietnam but said Sunday the platform must not lead Hanoi to believe that by stalling it will get an "easier package."

McCarthy said he has never called for an immediate and unconditional bombing halt. "A bombing halt was always related to negotiations," he said.

Humphrey was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," McCarthy on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Youth Drowns Swimming at Dardanelle

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Roy Allen Sparks, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Sparks of Clarksville, drowned Sunday while swimming in about 8 feet of water in backwaters of the Dardanelle Reservoir.

Members of the Clarksville Volunteer Fire Department recovered the body about 90 minutes after the accident.

Johnson County Coroner Rody Nicholas said Sparks was swimming with a friend, James Askins of Clarksville. The accident occurred about five miles south of Clarksville.

edge of the operations of the New York Stock Exchange? It saw no justification for setting minimum commission charges.

In 1967, volume on the Big Board came to about 2.5 billion shares valued at about $125 billion. This netted the 650 member firms a commission income of about $1.5 billion, with 1 per cent of this, about $15.5 million, paid to the exchange.

The antitrust division said it foresaw no significant risk of "destructive" price levels or adverse effects on the operation of the exchange from competition in rates.

Haack replied that the position is based on a false assumption—"that standard competitive concepts applicable to a typical manufacturing business can be applied without modification to the securities industry."

Negotiated rates, Haack said, would result in "destructive competition" in periods of declining market volume. The concept, he said, "is a valid, recognized economic exception to free competition."

Because of the unique characteristics of the securities industry, Haack said, "destructive competition" would mean that the customer would suffer as well as the entire nation's allocation of resources.

Unregulated commission rates, he said, would "seriously weaken the exchange, undermine the stability of the securities industry and greatly reduce established safeguards for the protection of investors."

Haack said unregulated commissions would have these effects:

—Firms would have little incentive to retain exchange membership. The exchange would shrink to a mere association of floor brokers and specialists.

—Over-the-counter markets in listed stocks would proliferate.

—Smaller brokerage firms, regardless of efficiency, would be eliminated.

—Firms would be discouraged from taking on additional fixed costs needed to meet peak demands of heavy volume.

—Services such as financial information and research probably would be eliminated.

—Overhead costs would be shifted to small, less powerful investors.

—Chances for consumer exploitation would increase.

—What the investor might save on commissions might be lost in poor execution of the stock transaction.

LBJ in Touch With Ike's Condition

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, remaining at his Texas ranch with no plans announced for the week, is keeping informed through his own medical staff of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's condition.

With miniskirted daughter Luci Nugent in tow, the chief executive attended two Sunday church services and heard prayers for himself and Eisenhower.

Eisenhower is in critical condition in Washington's Walter Reed Army Hospital, suffering from his seventh heart attack.

Johnson went first to St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church in Stonewall, a couple of miles from his hill country ranch. The pastor, the Rev. Wunibald W. Schneider, prayed for Johnson and for all political candidates and national convention delegates.

At Trinity Lutheran church, across the Pedernales River from the ranch property, the Rev. Norman C. Truesdell in his prayer said "we especially petition Thou would watch over the dearly beloved Dwight David Eisenhower."

Mrs. Johnson did not attend either service. She is an Episcopalian, her husband is a member of the Christian Church and Luci is a convert to Catholicism.

SAIGON (AP) — Ten civilians were killed and one wounded Sunday when a bus struck a mine on National Highway 1, near the Quang Ngai-Binh Dinh province border, officials reported.

Six Killed in Oklahoma Plane Crash

MIAMI, Okla. (AP)—Six persons were killed early today when a light airplane crashed into a beanfield a mile from the Miami airport.

No one survived the crash, which was witnessed by the airport manager and the wife of the pilot.

The victims were identified as:

Bob McGaw, the pilot, from Miami; Kenneth Fields, Ronnie Teague, Darlene Cooper, Louise Yankowski, all of the Miami area, and Charles Hayes of Crane, Mo.

All were employees of the Glenn Berry Manufacturing Co., a clothing manufacturer of Commerce, three miles north of Miami in northeastern Oklahoma.

the NLF.

If Saigon rejected such a coalition, McCarthy specified, U.S. military support would be withdrawn.

Humphrey obviously was hunting for a compromise. He said Saturday he accepts most proposals of "the peace Democrats" including a qualified agreement to halt bombing.

But the vice president said that a cessation of bombing should be in response to some restraint by Hanoi. And he declared he could not accept a plank which repudiated "the policies and sacrifices of the past."

Platform Chairman Boggs has taken no public position on the plank. His role—like the one successfully played by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois as Republican platform chairman at the GOP convention—is to seek a compromise in the committee on this most divisive of issues.

A convention floor fight over Vietnam, staged under the eyes of the press and in the glare of TV lights, would highlight Democratic disunity as the party heads into a crucial election battle.

McCarthy backers claimed they had more than enough supporters on the Platform Committee to bring a dissenting plank to the convention floor.

More than 300 witnesses were scheduled for appearances before Boggs' committee, which meets in Washington until moving to Chicago on Thursday.

Four subcommittees were set up to hear the witnesses on issues ranging from race riots to pensions for World War I veterans.

Race Trouble in Areas of St. Petersburg

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Shotgun and pistol fire range out through the racially troubled Southside section Sunday night in the third successive night of violence.

The City Council called an emergency meeting for today to determine what action to take to stem further outbreaks in the 19-square block heart of the trouble in the predominantly Negro area.

Liquor and gasoline sales were banned Saturday and Sunday in a 500-square block section of the Southside where damage from a weekend of violence was estimated at $150,000.

An unofficial estimate placed the number of persons arrested at 77, a half dozen of them Sunday night when the Florida Highway Patrol's riot-control armored truck was peppered by shotgun blasts fired from ambush.

The total number of injured was placed at 18. None was seriously hurt.

Backed up by the patrol's armored vehicle, law enforcement officers used tear gas to break up three large gatherings Sunday night. Officers on foot swept through the gas-blanketed area to drive out stragglers.

Lt. M.G. Colman, leader of the city's riot-trained officers on the streets, said the patrol vehicle proved a major factor in dispersing crowds.

"It is extremely effective," Colman said. "We haven't had a full-scale riot here, but if we had, you would really know the value of that thing," Colman said.

tack Friday.

There were eight such spasms between the time of the attack and the Sunday night medical bulletin.

The spasms, which involve irregular twitching of the muscles in the heart's lower chamber, are known medically as ventricular fibrillation.

Walter Reed doctors blame Eisenhower's spasms on the "serious underlying disease of the heart."

At the general's side were his wife Mamie, his son John and three grandchildren; Barbara Anne, Susan Elaine and David.

Although the doctors did not detail how the pacemaker was installed, the usual method entails inserting a thin tube with two tiny electrodes at its tip into a vein and gently sliding it through the body into the heart.

Usually a vein in an arm is used, but sometimes it is a neck vein.

In the Sunday afternoon bulletin, there were indications that the pacemaker had succeeded in suppressing the spasms. The doctors said then that though gravely ill Eisenhower was alert.

THE CASE OF THE WAITING DOGS

Dear Helen: In defense of youth—More than 35 years ago I cut this poem from a New York paper. It is as apt now as it was then:

QUO VADIS?

My grandpa notes the world's worn cogs
And says we're going to the dogs.
His grandpa in his house of logs
Said things were going to the dogs.
His grandpa in his hairy togs
Said things were going to the dogs.
But this is what I wish to state—
The dogs have had an awful wait!
Dear J: True!

... And no doubt Adam and Eve said it too, for back when Cain killed Abel, statistics would show that one-fourth of the world's entire population had committed murder!—H.

Dear Helen: Last week my neighbors were called away by a death in the family. They asked me to watch their 14-year-old bratty daughter. Foolishly, I agreed.

She made my house a disaster area. One of my $50.00 lamps is broken—she even broke three windows. The whole week was nothing but trouble, teasing, and disobedience.

then tripped me and I also fell in. My husband caught her and carried her into the house where my husband wanted to spank her several times, but I wouldn't let him, as she wasn't my child.

Last night did it! She came home from a dance at six a.m. We were worried sick, but when I scolded her she threw a tantrum, and when I said we were going to spank her she said we'd have to catch her first.

She ran in the back yard and pushed my husband in the pool. My husband caught her and carried her into the house where he proceeded to administer discipline where it did the most good—with her across his knee.

Just then her parents walked in—they'd heard her howling as they drove up. The father punched my husband in the nose. The girl told them we'd spanked her every day since they left, which was a big lie, though she certainly deserved it.

Now our erstwhile friends won't speak to us and are telling everyone that we are child beaters, and if we don't apologize they'll take us to court. I say they'd better pay about $100 worth of damages their darling left behind her.

Should we apologize or demand reparations?—W.S.H.

Dear W: Apologize first, then present a bill for damages. The little darlin' no doubt deserved a great big hand, but you weren't the ones to administer it.—H.

Dear Helen: The asinine letter signed "Real Woman" makes me sick. This faithless creature proclaims she thanks God every day for sending her an extra man, in addition to her husband. Does she want us to believe God is reneging on his stand against adultery?

The husband and lover are milking the same cow, yet even a dumb husband can tell that someone else is getting the cream. How does a man with years of fidelity behind him fight against the "wonderfulness" of womanhood as portrayed by this sexy Pied Piper? I have discovered my wife is like that too.

—DUM3 BUT EYES OPEN

Dear Dumb: He could throw the rascal out!—H.

Parents Talk With Child Heart Patient

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Within hours after her heart transplant, Maria Giannaris, 5, was awake, alert and able to visit with her parents.

The Hagerstown, Md., girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick A. Giannaris, was reported in satisfactory condition at Texas Children's Hospital today.

She became the second child recipient in history Sunday when surgeons transferred the heart of another youngster who had suffered brain hemorrhage. The girl was the world's 31st heart recipient.

The donor was James Dudley Herron II, 11-year-old son of James Dudley Herron, a chemistry professor at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Young Herron suffered a brain hemorrhage Friday and lapsed into a coma. When Dr. Robert Carpenter, the family physician, told the parents the boy was a potential heart donor, they agreed to his transfer to Houston.

The boy was flown here early Sunday and died several hours later without regaining consciousness.

Maria was referred to the Texas Heart Institute by the cardiac clinic at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, where her case was diagnosed as severe heart failure.

The girl had been in Texas Children's Hospital three weeks before the operation.

Her father, who owns a restaurant at the Hagerstown Airport, said Maria was 5½ months old when doctors discovered she had heart disease.

Dr. Alex Haller of Johns Hopkins "told me the heart transplant was our only hope," Giannaris said.

"He told me his hospital wouldn't be prepared for transplant operations for at least another six months and he couldn't answer whether my daughter could live another six months."

Giannaris said a young patient dying last Wednesday at Texas Children's Hospital could have provided the heart, but the parents would not allow the operation.

"On Thursday my baby got so sick the doctors didn't think she would live," he said. "And on Saturday they told us just to pray."

Giannaris said he met the donor's father, James Dudley Herron, at the hospital Sunday.

"When I saw the boy's father at the door, it seemed like I had known him all my life," Giannaris said. "He said 'we have three boys and we've always wanted a little girl, so now we are going to have one and we can share her with you'."

Mr. and Mrs. Giannaris have another daughter, Tessie.

A surgical team led by Dr. Denton A. Cooley performed the operation in 105 minutes, a spokesman said. The implanted heart started without electrical stimulation.

"The hearts were the same size," the spokesman said. "The little girl's heart was overworked because it was diseased. Like any overworked muscle it was enlarged."

The first child to receive a transplanted heart died 6½ hours after the operation at Maimonides Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y., last December. The recipient was a 2½-week-old boy who received the heart of a 2-day-old infant.

Cooley, who was vacationing in Mexico with his family, flew back to Houston for the latest transplant.

Four other heart transplant recipients are recuperating in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, which adjoins the children's hospital. Two other persons with new hearts have been released and are working in Houston. Two recipients here died.

Oswald: "There are certain plays that a really fine player makes automatically because he knows they are correct, a careful player makes them after thinking things over, and a careless player usually plays wrong first and thinks afterwards."

James: "Here's a most expensive example. South's bidding was very good. Instead of using Blackwood he decided to cue bid his ace of hearts after North jumped to four spades. When North bid six clubs to show this ace, South bid six diamonds to show his second round control of the suit. North decided that his very good spades and queen of clubs were just what the doctor had ordered and went to the grand slam."

Oswald: "It took South just about five seconds to throw away game, grand slam and rubber. He spent one second counting 13 tricks. He could draw trumps, discard two of dummy's hearts and one diamond on his long clubs, ruff his losing heart and get ready for the next rubber. Then he played his ace and king of spades. East showed out. Five minutes later South was down two."

Jim: "He could not afford two more trump leads and he tried to make the hand by ruffing one of dummy's diamonds. West overruffed and cashed a heart for down two."

Oswald: "An expert would have started with the automatic plays of winning one of the first two spade leads in dummy in order to leave a spade honor in his own hand. Should trumps break 3-2 it would make no difference. With trumps breaking 4-1 the expert would have been able to ruff the third diamond lead with the ace or king of trumps; lead a trump to dummy, discard his low heart on dummy's long trump and run clubs for the rest of the tricks."

Jim: "Automatic for an expert. A careful player would have to take a second or two to work it out."

Child Elects to Stay With His Father

BROOKDALE, Calif. (AP) — The Harold Painter household was filled with joy today because 10-year-old Mark Painter's grandmother in Iowa said he can stay here with his father and new mother.

"There's no way to tell you how happy this makes us all," said Harold Painter, Mark's father, foreseeing the peaceful end to a long custody battle over the boy.

Painter, a writer-photographer who lives in this Santa Cruz Mountain village 50 miles south of San Francisco, said he had heard Sunday from the Rev. Clay Lumpkins of Gilbert, Iowa, pastor to Mark's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Bannister of Ames.

The Rev. Mr. Lumpkins visited the Painters here last week to ask the boy whether he wanted to stay on with his father or return to his grandparents in Iowa.

The custody struggle began after the death in 1962 of Mark's mother, the daughter of the Bannisters. Painter sent the baby to them, then remarried and sought to get the boy back. The case went to the Iowa Supreme Court, which ruled the boy would be better off in the "stable, dependable, conventional middle-class Middle West home" of the Bannisters than in Painter's "romantic, impractical, unstable and arty" environment which it described as "Bohemian and probably intellectually stimulating."

This summer Mark came west to spend his usual vacation with his father. He said he liked it here, wanted to stay and didn't want to go back to Iowa.

Painter meanwhile got a Santa Cruz court to issue a temporary order assigning him custody, with a hearing set for Aug. 28 to determine whether it should be permanent. He argued that the Bannisters, both now 63, have undergone "changes in the mental and physical condition... which would endanger Mark's welfare if he were to return to live with them."

In Ames, the Rev. Mr. Lumpkins said Mrs. Bannister has accepted Mark's decision and will make no further efforts to get him back. "She has been concerned for the boy's welfare from the start, but she wants what he wants" he said.

Packer, Bear Game to Be Televised

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

There was a snag in the New Orleans Saints' defensive blanket, Houston quarterback Pete Beathard found it and unraveled the cover with his feet.

With Houston trailing 23-17 and only 56 seconds remaining in the game at the Astrodome, Beathard went back to pass. But his receivers were given blanket coverage.

So, Beathard forgot about his arm and concentrated on his footwork to ramble through a hole for six yards and the tying touchdown. Sid Blanks then ran around right end for the extra point, giving the Oilers of the American Football League a 24-23 victory over the National Football League Saints.

In Sunday's only other exhibition, the Cleveland Browns battered the San Francisco 49ers 31-17 in a meeting of NFL clubs.

The results of a busy Saturday night schedule:

Dallas, NFL, trounced Los Angeles, NFL, 42-10; Miami, AFL, pounded Philadelphia, NFL, 23-7; Pittsburgh, NFL, edged San Diego, AFL, 36-33; New York, NFL, nipped Atlanta, NFL, 17-13; Kansas City, AFL, outlasted St. Louis, NFL, 13-10; Minnesota, NFL, walked Denver, AFL, 39-16; Buffalo, AFL, topped Cincinnati, AFL, 10-6; and New York, AFL, thrashed Boston, AFL, 25-6.

The weekend's activity ends Monday night with an NFL game between the Green Bay Packers and the Chicago Bears in Milwaukee, Wis.

The nationally televised game (CBS at 9:30 p.m., EDT) will be the first meeting of the old rivals under their new coaches—Jim Dooley for the Bears and Phil Bengtson for the Packers.

Once again the Packers will have to worry about stopping the running of Chicago's brilliant Gale Sayers, while the Bears will have to contain the machine-like Packer offense directed by Bart Starr.

New Orleans built up a 23-7 lead on Bill Kilmer's two touchdown passes, Don McCall's touchdown run and Charlie Durkee's field goal. Kilmer's attempted pass for a conversion after his second touchdown toss failed.

Beathard ran three yards for a Houston touchdown in the second period. He Oiler's first touchdown in the final period came on a 39-yard run by Ken Houston with a pass interception, and it was followed by John Wittenborn's 47-yard field goal.

Frank Ryan threw a first period scoring pass and Bill Nelson, obtained from Pittsburgh, hit on two in the second half in leading Cleveland to victory. George Mira, who had two passes intercepted to set up Cleveland touchdowns, threw for one of San Francisco's scores.

Don Meredith threw two 55-yard touchdown passes in the Arkansas game, and Los Shreveport 69-55, 557 2½. Angeles never recovered as the Memphis Rams suffered their first exhibition loss after 11 straight pre-season victories.

Philadelphia not only lost its El Paso game to Miami, it also lost several players to injuries. Running back Harry Jones dislocated San Antonio 51-69, 425 12. and fractured his left collarbone and will be out from eight to 12 weeks, and middle linebacker Dave Lloyd cracked two ribs and is expected to be out for three weeks. The other injuries were less serious.

Minnesota also lost Gary Cuozzo for at least next Saturday's game against Philadelphia. The quarterback jammed his left shoulder late in the first half in the Vikings' victory over Denver.

Harry Jones May Be Out for Season

READING, Pa. (AP)—Harry Jones, former University of Arkansas standout, is expected to undergo surgery today for a fractured left collarbone.

Jones, a running back with the Philadelphia Eagles, sustained the injury Saturday night in the Eagles' 23-7 loss to the Miami Dolphins in Miami.

Dr. James Nixon, the team's physician, said Jones could miss the entire National Football League season.

Boston Uses Bunts to Beat Tigers

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The bunting game is something Detroit might be able to do without, but Juan Pizarro and the Boston Red Sox are ready and willing to make sacrifices... anytime they help ease the runaway Tigers.

The Red Sox, losers Saturday in a 10-9 struggle that turned on a pair of botched Detroit bunts, put on their own bunting exhibition Sunday in trimming the Tigers 4-1 behind left-hander Pizarro.

Three perfectly executed sacrifice bunts, including a go-ahead squeeze by Pizarro, helped the Red Sox salvage the finale of a three-game series as Detroit's American League lead slipped to seven games over second place Baltimore.

The Orioles whipped Minnesota 7-1 on Frank Robinson's slugger in the New York Yankees strolled past Oakland 7-5 in 10 innings; Tommy John and Joe Horlen hurled the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2, 8-1 doubleheader sweep over Cleveland, and California downed Washington 6-4 despite Frank Howard's 35th homer in other AL games.

Cincinnati swept a National League twin bill from Chicago 2-1 and 6-3; Houston split a pair with New York, taking the nightcap 5-2 after an 8-1 setback; St. Louis trounced Atlanta 10-1; Philadelphia swatted San Francisco 5-3, and Pittsburgh trimmed Los Angeles 5-1.

Bill Freehan's 11th inning homer beat Boston Saturday, nullifying a gallant comeback by the Red Sox. But they felt they'd been the victims of two Detroit bunts that didn't come off.

In the eighth, reliever Sparky Lyle grabbed Al Kaline's bunt on the fly, but threw the ball away trying to double Mickey Stanley off first base. Stanley took second on the error and scored on Norm Cash's single, giving Detroit a 9-8 lead.

Ken Harrelson pulled the Red Sox even with a ninth inning homer, but Freehan connected with two out in the 10th after Willie Horton flubbed a bunt attempt and then rapped into a double play.

"It's ironic," said Boston Manager Dick Williams, "but if Horton had sacrificed, Freehan would have never had a chance to hit. With first base open and a light hitter like Ray Oyler coming up next I'd have forced their hand by intentionally walking him."

The clubs were knotted again, at 1-1, in the seventh inning Sunday when Joe Foy doubled and Russ Gibson bunted him to third. With a 3-2 count on Pizarro, Foy broke for the plate and the pitched dropped a bunt to ward second base, giving the Tigers no chance for a play at first.

Mike Andrews then drew a walk and Dalton Jones belted a home run, making it 4-1. Andrews failed to hit safely for the first time in 10 games, but his sacrifice bunt in the third moved Pizarro, who had walked, to second and Carl Yastrzemski delivered a two-out single for Boston's first run.

Pizarro checked the Tigers on four hits, including Horton's 28th homer, on the way to his fifth victory in nine decisions.

The Orioles flattened Minnesota behind rookie Dave Leonard, who scattered seven hits, as Frank Robinson drove in four runs with a single, a double and his 11th homer. Mark Belanger's two-run double in the third inning gave Leonard, 6-5, a 2-0 lead and Robinson took it from there.

Low Krausse, the sixth Oakland pitcher, walked Rocky Colavito and Frank Fernandez with the bases loaded in the 10th, enabling the Yankees to complete a 6-1 road trip to the West Coast. Andy Kosco homered for New York while Reggie Jackson accounted for three of the Athletics' runs with a double and his 23rd homer.

John and Horlen each fired a six-hitter as the White Sox snapped a four-game losing streak with their double victory over the Indians. Duane Josephson's two-run homer in the eighth inning of the opener broke a 1-1 tie and the White Sox struck for three runs, two of them on Buddy Bradford's double, in the fourth inning of the nightcap before pulling away with the help of a two-run homer by Ron Hansen.

Tom Burgmeier scored the tie-breaking run at Anaheim on an eighth inning throwing error by Senators reliever Phil Ortega. The Angels added two more runs before repulsing a ninth inning Washington rally touched off by Brent Aylers' first homer.

Reds Win 2 After Big Rhubarb

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

Label this file The Case of the Sticky Fingered Vulture or Where Did This Bird Get All That Goopy Stuff?

Chief slum in the caper is umpire Chris Pelekoudas, who claims he found the incriminating evidence... vaseline... on the cap of the suspect, Slippery Phil Regan—alias the vulture—who works with that gang from Chicago.

The main defense attorney is Leo Durocher, an eloquent speaker. His able assistants are Randy Hundley and Al Spangler, two other members of the Chicago gang, who call themselves the Cubs.

All three lawyers were effected protesting Regan's innocence, and the Cubs lost the ball game, 2-1 to Cincinnati Sunday. The Reds also took the second game of the doubleheader, 6-3, extending their winning streak to six games.

In other National League games, St. Louis pounded Atlanta 10-1, Philadelphia tripped San Francisco 5-3, Pittsburgh dropped Los Angeles 5-1 and New York split a doubleheader with Houston, winning 8-1 before losing 5-2.

In the American League, Boston dropped Detroit 4-1, Baltimore rapped Minnesota 7-1, California downed Washington 6-4, New York defeated Oakland 7-5 in 10 innings and Chicago swept a doubleheader from Cleveland 4-2 and 8-1.

The Regan fuss erupted in the seventh inning of the first game against the Reds when the veteran reliever came in to face pinch hitter Jack Jones. With the count 1-2 on Jones, Pelekoudas went to the mound to warn Regan about illegal pitches and changed the count to 3-1.

Durocher rushed to his pitcher's defense and the umpire and manager compromised on a 2-2 count. Then Jones apparently flied out but Pelekoudas nullified the play, ruling another illegal pitch and giving Jones another swing.

Now Durocher argued again and the umpires demanded a towel to wipe off the inside of Regan's cap. Durocher and Spangler, who interjected his thoughts from the bench, were both thumbed out and Jones finally grounded out.

In the ninth inning Pete Rose apparently struck out against Regan but again Pelekoudas nullified the out and gave the batter another swing. This time Rose singled and Hundley, the Cubs' catcher, was ejected.

"We found vaseline on his cap," charged Pelekoudas. "His ball was sinking without spinning. A sinker spins. An illegal pitch breaks down without any spin."

Regan was indignant at the charge. "The umpires are taking my livelihood away from me," he said. "I'm going to court about this."

Cincinnati power made the difference in both games. Tony Perez's fourth-inning homer won the first game by brilliant ninth inning relief by Clay Carroll saving it for George Culver. Perez, Rose, Fred Whitfield and Alex Johnson all homered in the nightcap.

Roger Maris and Orlando Cepeda tagged two hits apiece in a nine-run first inning explosion that carried the Cardinals past Atlanta. Mike Shannon had four straight hits for St. Louis and Ray Washburn breezed to his 11th victory.

Cepeda and Phil Gagliano drove in two runs each in the big first inning after an error by shortstop Marty Martinez opened the gates.

Bob Veale pitched a four-hitter and the Pirates trimmed the Dodgers, scoring two runs on an error by Bob Bailey.

Fred Patek's run-scoring single in the seventh snapped a scoreless duel between Veale and Don Sutton. Then Bailey's error gave the Pirates two more.

Successful eighth inning home runs by Rich Allen and Bill White carried the Phillies past the Giants. Allen's 25th homer snapped a 3-3 tie and then White's No. 9 and second of the game wrapped it up for Philadelphia.

Don Cardwell scattered six hits and singled in the first two New York runs as the Mets ripped Houston in the first game, Four Astro errors led to three unearned runs for New York.

Jim Ray allowed just four hits and struck out 10, nailing down the nightcap and gaining the split for Houston. Jim Wynn hit his 19th homer of the year and third in as many days against the Mets.

Prohibition Try: First, Alcohol; Now, Tobacco

Tobacco were actually the death-dealing poison that government propagandists contend it is I wouldn't write this; but since doctors themselves are in bitter disagreement, and smoking has been a human habit for generations, I feel justified in objecting to what appears to be just another invasion of the individual's privacy by a tyrannical government.

You don't have to have too long a memory to develop the feeling that this is a movie we've seen before. Once there was a pre-war group dedicated to the principle that alcohol ought to be abolished. The pressure group took over the government and pretty soon we were deluged with official propaganda declaring that alcohol was a poison and a killer. Federal prohibition finally developed.

But the trouble was, the propaganda was untrue, the people flatly defied the Eighteenth Amendment, and liquor prohibition was demolished.

Actually the case against alcohol was less important than the tyrannical desire of a minority to cancel out a personal habit popular with the majority of citizens.

Now the same propaganda case is being made out against tobacco. But because of the flaccid with liquor the propagandists don't dare to advocate openly the prohibition of tobacco. An examination of their technique shows they are afraid to be seen at the front door so they're attempting to sneak in the back way.

Here are some excerpts from the recommendations published last Friday by the Surgeon General's Task Force on Smoking and Health:

Tighter restrictions on cigarette advertising and promotion. Use of group approaches to prevent or reduce smoking. More insurance plans which give reduced rates to non-smokers.

Do you still think you have a free choice over your own habits and your own life in this supposedly free-choice Republic? Or don't you rather suspect that the Washingtonians make it their business to look in to your personal habits and then firmly resolve to do you good by changing them?

Just for the record, I wish to state this newspaper has no cigarette advertising at present but will publish same when and if offered.

Calls Election Board Just a Rubber Stamp

Associated Press
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An attorney for the Republican party contended today that the state Board of Election Commissioners was nothing more than a "rubber stamp" and had no discretion in determining third members of county boards of election commissioners.

The argument was advanced by Ronald A. May, a Little Rock attorney, before the state Supreme Court, which returned to work today after its summer recess.

The high court, which has seven members — all of them Democrats, took the case under advisement.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Don Langston, representing the Democratic party, said he believed the state board has "wide discretion" in making appointments.

The case stems from a meeting of the state board on Aug. 1, 1967, when the board divided along party lines in naming seven persons to fill vacancies on county boards.

Eisenhower's Condition Is Critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower remains in "extremely critical" condition and has suffered numerous episodes of irregular heart action since Sunday night, Army doctors reported today.

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital said an electrical pacemaker, inserted earlier into the heart of the five-star general, had been removed after it failed to stop the spasms.

The recurring irregularities, doctors said earlier, constitute a "constant and critical hazard" to Eisenhower's survival.

The text of a morning medical bulletin: "General Eisenhower's condition remains extremely critical. The electrical pacemaker was removed late yesterday because of its demonstrated ineffectiveness after the initial few hours.

"Since last night's bulletin numerous episodes of ventricular irregularity have occurred, most of only a few seconds duration but two requiring electrical conversion.

"Despite this, the general remains alert, converses briefly, and enjoyed a small breakfast. He is visited briefly from time to time by members of the immediate family, at his request.

"Mrs. Eisenhower has remained calm during these past trying days, and has received comfort and support from her sister, Mrs. Gordon Moore, who together with Col. John Eisenhower and his family have been constantly with her."

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital in a bulletin issued Sunday night said the 77-year-old five-star general was resting comfortably without pain, but "remains critically ill" after suffering two more spasms following insertion of an electrical pacemaker.

The bulletin read: "Gen. Eisenhower remains critically ill. Electrical pacing by means of a transvenous catheter has been ineffective in suppressing the episodes of ventricular irregularity. Two more, each quickly reverting to normal, have occurred since the afternoon bulletin.

"Vital signs, in the interval between these episodes, have remained essentially stable. The general is not in pain, is resting comfortably, and sleeps intermittently.

"Members of the immediate family remain in close attendance and have seen the general at intervals.

The use of the pacemaker was the latest of several efforts made to halt the spasms which have recurred since Eisenhower suffered his seventh heart attack.

See EISENHOWER'S Litterbugs Not Only a Nuisance But Are Very, Very Expensive

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Litterbugs aren't merely nuisances. They're expensive. The cost of picking up the debris they leave on highways, beaches, park sites and other public property adds half a billion dollars annually to the nation's tax bill.

On the other hand, a nagging wife can sometimes save you money. By bawling you out she may herself avoid getting an expensive ailment—arthritis. Many psychiatrists believe that women who bottle up their emotions and brood about their woes are particularly susceptible to arthritis.

The more cars a family has, the more each vehicle is used. Families with two or more cars average 10,000 miles a car. Those with one car average 9,000.

A good wife is a good financial bargain. One study found that wives who don't hold outside jobs put in nearly 100 hours a week on their homemaking duties. If you could find any other woman who would work that hard or long for a minimum of $1.60 an hour—and you probably couldn't—she would cost you

Mobs Attack Arabs After Bomb Blasts

JERUSALEM (AP) — Mobs smashed Arab cars and attacked Arabs in the streets Sunday night after a series of bomb blasts touched off a riot.

Three explosions rocked the city Sunday injuring at least nine persons, two seriously.

Armed riot police were called in to disperse bands of young Israelis who ran through the streets for more than an hour seeking reprisals for the blasts.

One Arab, who was beaten, was in critical condition in a hospital, informed sources said. Police equipped with night sticks, shields and steel helmets closed all seven gates to the Old City and allowed nobody through.

Informed sources said some 30 Arabs and 20 Israelis—mostly young people—were arrested during the disturbances.

Explosions occurred in the city bus station, in a gas station near the railroad station and at the intersection of King George and Allenby roads after police found two unexploded grenades outside a movie theater and in a public toilet.

In other Middle East developments: Israeli and Jordanian troops exchanged machine-gun and artillery fire Sunday afternoon across the Jordan River, near the Allenby Bridge, about 15 miles north of the Dead Sea.

Each side said the other started the shooting which lasted almost an hour. No casualties were reported.

Egyptian army officials said Sunday night that two of Israel's Mirage jets were driven off by anti-aircraft fire after they flew over the northern end of the Suez Canal and crossed Egyptian territory.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli army sources said an unspecified number of Egyptian MIG jets were chased by Israeli interceptors after the MIGs flew over Israeli territory between El Qantara and the Great Bitter Lake, on the Suez Canal.

Woman Pays Fine for Vagrancy

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Debbie Metcalf, 18, of Asheville, N.C., who recently appealed a vagrancy conviction to the state Supreme Court and lost, paid the remainder of her fine Sunday and was released from the Pulaski County Jail.

She and three other persons were arrested July 29 after their car broke down near Little Rock.

The three, William H. Dry, 27, Harry Stewart Dry, 23, and Jerry Lee McAllister, 22, appealed their convictions along with Miss Metcalf. The high court refused Wednesday to overturn their convictions.

Ted Lamb, one of the attorneys who handled the appeal, contended that the 1905 vagrancy law was unconstitutional because it required a person to prove his own innocence.

Candidates At Odds Over War Policy

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Preliminary sparring for next week's Democratic National Convention opened today with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's campaign manager rejecting a compromise Vietnam platform plank while the credentials committee sought to settle a key civil rights fight.

As the platform committee hearings opened in Washington, educator Clark Kerr, head of the National Committee for a Political Settlement in Vietnam, urged McCarthy to drop his demand for a coalition government in South Vietnam and asked Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to agree to a total halt in bombing of North Vietnam.

But Blair Clark, McCarthy's campaign manager, called Kerr's proposal "thoroughly inadequate—it is just not good enough." The McCarthy forces have made clear they will press for a floor fight unless they are successful in the platform group.

Meanwhile, Humphrey, in this convention city for a round of speeches and interviews, pledged if elected he will do everything he can to end the war. "If I am permitted to become president and if by then there is no peace or cease fire I will do everything in my power, with honor, to bring peace to Southeast Asia," the vice president told some 500 members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks.

The credentials group met meanwhile, in closed session prior to opening its public hearings with the Mississippi challenge, where the regular party group is being contested by a biracial delegation supported by both Humphrey and McCarthy.

The Mississippi case is expected to be settled faster than the 18 other challenges, which involve various issues of racial

See CANDIDATES (on page two) Says State Workers Due $955,485

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Labor Department's Wage, Hour and Public Contracts Division says Arkansas employees covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act were due $955,485 in back pay for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Bill D. Guse, supervisor of the Little Rock office of the agency, said $500,751 was due 3,572 employees who were not paid time and half for overtime. Guse said $421,390 was due 3,000 workers who were paid at hourly rates lower than the applicable federal minimum.

Guse said some cases had been delayed by pending legal decisions, but that many of the employers had voluntarily paid the back wages.

Wallace Cancels Trip to State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace who is running for president on a third party ticket will not appear in Little Rock Tuesday as scheduled.

Jim Johnson of Conway, who was instrumental in getting Wallace's name on the general election ballot in Arkansas, said he thought the visit would be rescheduled some time next month.

A spokesman for Wallace said, however, that no new date had been set for a Wallace appearance in Little Rock. The spokesman, contacted at Wallace's headquarters in Montgomery, Ala., said the Little Rock date had been taken off the calendar without any explanation.

Vietnam Plank Poses Threat to Harmony on Democratic Platform

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Platform Committee opened hearings today with a plea by its chairman, Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, for harmony—a harmony already threatened by discord over the plank on Vietnam.

Although Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has made a compromise move toward acceptance of a U.S. halt to bombing of North Vietnam, he balked at another key point of a seven-step peace plan proposed by his chief rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

The issue involves McCarthy's insistence that the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, be included in any South Vietnamese coalition government.

If this point isn't settled in the platform hearings, and that seems unlikely, it probably will result in a floor fight when the party's national convention convenes in Chicago next week.

In a statement prepared for the opening hearing, Rep. Boggs urged the 110 platform drafters to "beware of flying to the extremes of controversy" and to seek reconciliation between the views of old and young, white and black, poor and affluent.

"I am . . . concerned about the new spirit of political intolerance that has been blowing hard of late against the face of American politics," the Louisiana congressman said.

"This attitude is so virulent in some quarters that it clearly defines our paramount task—which is to effect a reconciliation among the divided members of society."

But the lines of conflict between Humphrey and McCarthy hardened on Sunday when they took opposing views on the issue of inviting the Viet Cong into a new South Vietnam government.

"The fundamental difference between myself and Sen. McCarthy is on the imposition of a coalition government. . . I cannot agree with that," Humphrey said.

McCarthy was equally firm. He said he could see no hope for compromise in peace efforts "unless you have a willingness to include in a new government the forces that are fighting it."

McCarthy went on: "He (Humphrey) is rejecting . . . the heart of the proposal I have been asking. . . I don't see any evidence of compromise."

Humphrey appeared on the CBS "Face the Nation" panel, McCarthy on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program.

McCarthy unwrapped his proposed peace plank on Saturday. It called for an immediate halt to the bombing of North Vietnam, a curtailment of American operations in South Vietnam, and the creation of a new coalition government in Saigon with "substantial participation" by

After Losing 200 Enemy Slips Away

By GEORGE ESPEY
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops slipped out of embattled Tay Ninh today after losing more than 200 dead in a series of blazing fights with allied troops, tanks and artillery in and around the key provincial capital Sunday.

An American armored column and South Vietnamese soldiers swept through the city today and reported encountering no resistance.

The battle for Tay Ninh brought to a pitch four days of hard fighting from the Mekong Delta north to Da Nang, that shattered a two-month lull in the ground war.

U.S. forces in Tay Ninh said some 500 North Vietnamese regulars—mainstays of the attacking force—slipped out under the cover of darkness through an armored trap set up outside the city.

The fighting in and around Tay Ninh—a city of 200,000 population, 45 miles northwest of Saigon—was considered serious by the allies, but military sources said it was too early to say whether it signaled the start of the third major offensive of the year threatened by the enemy high command.

North Vietnam's official newspaper, Nhan Dan, called today for "a new and more violent offensive to wrest military victories from the enemy."

The plea was keyed to the 23rd anniversary of the Aug. 19, 1945, start of the rebellion which climaxed in the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu in 1954.

The new fighting likely will prompt an exchange of accusations between North Vietnamese and American negotiators, when the Paris peace talks resume Wednesday.

Some observers had interpreted the two-month lull in the war as a sign of de-escalation on Hanoi's part. But U.S. officials had insisted all along that the enemy command was deliberately availing contact with allied forces to prepare for a country-wide offensive.

As the fighting eased in Tay Ninh, there were fresh reports of enemy attacks to the far north below Da Nang and south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta.

Savors Sweet Elixir of Success

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Tiny Tim was 10 minutes late, and he dashed into the office, out of breath from rushing.

"Oh, I'm so sorry," he said, holding out his left hand to be shaken. He never shakes with his right hand.

He showed signs of the haste with which he had raced to make the appointment. He was still tucking the collar of his green-and-red shirt around his red-and-blue tie. The white powder on his face was obviously applied sketchily. His stringy hair, hanging in strands like limp licorice, was more unkempt than usual.

"Tiny," said the secretary, "Cinderella is here to see you."

"Tell her to wait an hour or so," Tiny said. "Tell her I'm having an interview."

Cinderella, he explained, was a dear friend. She was, he thought, a beautiful young lady, but a little odd. She always carried a Popeye lunchbox with her, full of very strange objects. The strangest of all, he said, was a pint liquor bottle, which was full of water and rocks and sand.

"She says the bottle is The Sea," Tim said, shaking his head a little, then reaching a thin hand up to push a strand of licorice away from his eyes.

Tiny Tim likes girls and has always been popular with them. Even back in his school days in The Bronx he was popular with girls—and with boys, too. They all liked him. He remembers how, at the beginning of each new school term, he would go into class and not know anybody. But the first time he got up to recite they would all laugh and from then on everybody knew him.

He was Herbert Khaury then. Both his mother and father worked in the garment houses of Manhattan. They worked hard and their hope and expectation was that their son would work hard, too, at some normal job.

But Tiny Tim didn't want that. He wanted to be in show business. He wanted to sing. He had dreams of glory. His mother and father tried to talk him out of his obsession.

"Regularly, twice a week," he says, "they took me aside and told me I should get a normal job and lead a normal life. But something made me go on."

It wasn't easy, Tiny Tim is a realist and knows his own limitations. He knew there were hundreds of singers who were better equipped, by nature. He talks repeatedly about "real singers," implying that he isn't one of those.

And nature outfitted him poorly for the stiff competition of show business. He is thin, almost to the point of emaciation, and his face, which is now his fortune, is unique. It is dominated by a nose for which the adjective "hook" is barely adequate. The nose begins at the eyebrows and proceeds out and around and then down and back. In profile, it is something like a capital C. It is a championship nose.

It overlooks a generous mouth, full of prominent, yellowish teeth. The face, in its entirety, is one you would look at twice. And yet, despite the peculiarity of the individual features, the face is a strangely pleasant one.

That is one of the things

bornly refusing to heed his nagging parents and laughing friends who begged him to go into some normal work, years of working for a pittance.

"I knew," he said, "that someday I would be discovered. Whenever I sang, I said to myself, maybe tonight, I would never let down, no matter how few people were listening. If the club was empty, I sang to the chairs."

He worked for $40 a week in sleazy clubs on the West Side of Manhattan, in Brooklyn, in The Bronx. He worked in one cially imported crackers from Armenia. He nibbles away at sunflower seeds and almonds. He washes with special soaps and shampoos.

And he feels good. His eyes sparkle. His voice is excited. He makes broad, theatrical gestures. The nicest thing you can say to him is that he doesn't look much over 19, at that.

He is enjoying every moment of his new-found fame and fortune. He is realist enough to know that it may not last, that he may be back

Tiny Tim's last laugh is well-earned. After years of plotting the circuit of sleazy clubs for $40 a week, he's now tiptoeing through his tulips at the tippy top of show business.

Tiny Tim has gone for him. He radiates good nature, a spirit of almost excessive friendliness, an air of optimism in the face of great odds.

Herbert Khaury continued to sing, despite the pressures of his family and their friends. He capitalized on his odd assets. He knew his normal voice, acceptable though it is, was not enough. So, when he discovered that he could sing with a crystal-clear falsetto, he began to use that voice, too.

He wanted to build an image to go with the high voice. One day he happened to see a picture of Rudolph Valentino, with long hair streaming over one eye.

"This, remember," he says, "was long before The Beatles popularized long hair. Nobody wore long hair in '53. I let mine grow—although, with the hair long on the other side from the Valentino picture, because I never copy anybody."

Thus was the image of Tiny Tim born, although the name didn't come along until later. At first he was Larry Love, then Darry Dover, then, after years of fruitless struggle, Tiny Tim.

Tiny Tim is somewhere in his late 40s or early 50s. All he'll say is that he is "over 19." Behind him are years of heartbreak, years of stibfor three years, until it was closed when the waitress made the mistake of soliciting a plainclothes policeman. Then he went to another one—$40 a week for seven days' work.

One night, he was discovered. A man from Reprise records came into a club called The Scene and heard him and thought this might make a fun record, this strange man with the falsetto voice. That was only last year. Everything that has happened to Tiny Tim has happened since that fateful night.

"I always wanted to be a big star," he says. "But I never really understood what that word 'big' meant. Oh, it is fabulous!"

The fruits of this success mean little to him. For awhile he went wild with food, and his hotel bills were tremendous. He bought himself $1,200 worth of instruments—a banjo and two guitars. And he was able to indulge his strange passions.

He is passionate about pills. He takes some 40 a day now that he can afford them. There are pills with every vitamin known to science, pills with such ingredients as rose hips, bovine organs and wheat germs. He washes them down with mineral water or organic apple juice.

He spreads honey from spray-free blossoms on spe-someday singing for $40 a week. He says that won't bother him, that he'll know that he was once there, once on that high plateau, once sampled the sweet elixir of success. That knowledge will be enough to sustain him.

The only potential cloud on his horizon is his understanding of his own weakness—girls.

"Oh, I love to look at girls, beautiful girls," he says. "But he must not touch or kiss them. That, he says, is against his religion. It is not an organized religion, but one of his own devising. His father is Catholic, his mother Jewish, but Tiny Tim practices his own religion."

"I believe in the Jesus Christ of the Scriptures," he says. "The blessings of God are on me."

He cannot touch or kiss a girl, according to his own teachings. Not, at least, until after he marries. And he says he will never marry because he knows he is very hard to live with. Once he went steady, but then realized it was wrong for him.

Tiny Tim is one of the phenomena of today's show business world. He is booked heavily through next year—things like The Ed Sullivan Show, Hollywood Palace, concerts, clubs. How long his odd appeal will last is, of course, anybody's guess.

Sideburns Were Just Too Long

NEW YORK (AP) — John Quincy Adams had them. So did Martin Van Buren. But what was okay for 19th century presidents isn't okay for employees of Northwest Orient Airlines today.

The airline has suspended 14 cargo handlers at Kennedy Airport because, like Adams, Van Buren and a number of more modern males, they wore their sideburns long.

George Parker, the airline's cargo manager, posted a directive last Wednesday, reading, "Sideburns should not be below the middle of the ear."

Parker, who waged a successful campaign against employees' beards last May, gave the men until midnight Saturday to get rid of the extra cheek hair.

Then he called all the men on the four to midnight and midnight to eight shifts into his office. Only four passed inspection.

The 14 with sideburns were sent home, but appealed to their union, the International Association of Machinists, which set up a meeting with company representatives today to discuss the situation.

"We're not even seen by the public," said one of the cargo handlers. "Our haircuts are in style right now and we're presentable. That's enough!"

The cargo handlers might be encouraged to learn that a California man who works for the U.S. Navy as a technical illustrator at Point Mugu Pacific Missile Range has won his fight to keep both his job and his long hair.

Richard Beckley was fired seven months ago for what the Navy called "poor taste in appearance evidenced by hair of an undue length, a beard and boots."

Beckley appeared. The U.S. Civil Service Commission's Washington office ordered the Navy to reinstate him.

Beckley now is back at work.

Youth, 14, Is Electrocuted

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Ulus D. Broyles, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. A. Broyles of Sherwood, was electrocuted Saturday when he apparently tried to plug a cord in to a 220-volt socket.

Fire Chief Pete Lacy said the accident occurred in a neighbor's workshop where the youngster had gone to work on his bicycle. Lacy said Broyles was barefooted and the garage floor was wet.

Miss Whitworth Posts Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, two-time defending champion of the Lady's Professional Golf Association, won the tournament here against Sunday with a record-tying 62 to give her a 206 total.

The Monahans, Tex., native tied the 18-hole record set by Mickey Wright in 1964 in the final round of the Tally Open at Midland, Tex.

Landslide in Japan Leaves 104 Dead

GIFFU, Japan (AP) — More bodies were recovered today from the Hilda River after a landslide swept two sight-seeing buses loaded with women and children from a mountain highway in the Japan Alps into the flooded stream. Officials believed 104 persons lost their lives.

Unless some of the missing are found on the shores, this will be the worst bus accident in history.

Three persons, including the driver of one of the buses, swam to shore through the raging river Sunday when the buses plummeted into 65 feet of water. Rescue workers have recovered 39 bodies, some as far as 18 miles downstream. Little hope is held for the 65 missing.

Divers searched one of the smashed buses after it had been swept against rocks 300 yards downstream and found no bodies. A crane tried to lift the bus from its lodging between two big boulders but it did not budge. There was no trace of the second bus.

Police in this central Japanese city said there were 107 persons aboard the two buses when they took off on a week end sight-seeing tour of the scenic mountains.

There were 101 passengers, mostly women and children, four bus employees and two sponsors of the tour, police reported.

Prime Minister Eisaku Sato ordered a government investigation of the accident.

and 35 wounded in what appeared to be two separate ambushes south of Da Nang. Thirty-six enemy troops were reported killed.

Forty-five miles south of Saigon in the Mekong Delta, Viet Cong troops ambushed an American riverine force with rockets and machine-gun fire, killing four Americans and wounded 82. Infantrymen from the U.S. 9th Infantry Division, riding the Navy attack boats, charged ashore and engaged the Viet Cong soldiers. The U.S. Command said nine Viet Cong were killed and four prisoners seized.

U.S. officers in Tay Ninh said the enemy forces failed to achieve most of their objectives in coordinated attacks on a dozen allied positions within a six-mile radius of the city. The U.S. military compound and the government provincial headquarters were never seriously threatened.

Nonetheless, the enemy did capture a wedge in the eastern part of the city before withdrawing and military sources said this would likely have psychological repercussions throughout the country.

Enemy casualties were estimated at more than 200 dead, American casualties were reported as approximately 100—mostly wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were expected to be higher than those for American forces, but reports were sketchy.

U.S. B-52 bombers ranged close to the Cambodian border today, renewing the pressure on enemy troop concentrations in the Tay Ninh vicinity. The big bombers had been hitting the Tay Ninh area regularly in an attempt to blunt any enemy attack against the city.

Other fighting reported around the country: —U.S. troops ran into Viet Cong 18 miles south of Saigon and killed nine of them. One U.S. helicopter was shot down and one American was killed.

—Enemy mortars lobbed five shells into a U.S. motor pool on the edge of Saigon without causing any injuries or damage.

—The Loc Ninh Special Forces camp and government district headquarters was hit by mortar and rocket fire for the second day today. Two U.S. soldiers were wounded and government casualties were reported light.

Search for Big Trees Continues

In the search for the Big Trees in Arkansas, the list for this week includes: Longleaf Pine, Ashe Juniper, Bitternut Hickory, Mockernut Hickory, Swamp Chestnut Oak, Black Oak, Nuttall Oak, Slippery Elm, Cedar Elm, and Red Buckeye.

The Arkansas Forestry Commission

mission along with the Arkansas Chapter of the Society of American Foresters is still attempting to locate the largest trees of the many, many different kinds that are growing in Arkansas today. Should you know of any large trees of the above species or any other kind of tree, simply check the circumference of the tree 4 1/2 feet above the ground, and estimate the height to the nearest foot, and by card or letter send your nomination to "Big Trees", P.O. Box 1040, Little Rock, Arkansas 72203.

For the other species, the largest Ashe Juniper was formerly reported as growing in Sylamore Forest, Stone County, with a circumference of 7 feet 5 inches. The Swamp Chestnut Oak, sometimes locally called Cow Oak, formerly was reported in the Ouachita River bottoms south of Camden, with a circumference of 15.8 feet.

The Summer Sweet Orchard in Cross County, formerly laid claim to having the largest Black Oak, with a circumference of 17 feet 8.5 inches. More recently Moscow, in Jefferson County, claimed the largest Nuttall Oak, with a circumference of 11.4 feet. It seems at one time, that many of the different species of large trees were found growing in Washington County, and fairly recent records indicate that Prairie Grove had the largest Slippery Elm, one with a circumference of 14 feet 4 1/2 inches.

Cedar Elm, the largest one was formerly found near Foreman, in Little River County, had a circumference of 8 feet 7 inches. As the list is beginning to narrow down, it would be appreciated if your nominations were received. You might nominate one that would be a national winner.

Monday, August 19, 1968
in the program being conducted by the American Forestry Association to locate the largest tree of the various species in the United States.
If your tree is not a national winner, but is a state winner, it will be included in the forthcoming revised edition of "Trees of Arkansas."
